

New Real Estate Company Understands The Issues Of The Urban Core

Everyone can use an ally. And for those ready to give up the suburbs for the excitement of downtown living, they now have one to help make the transition an easy one.

Specializing in lofts, condos and townhomes in the Urban Core, the area from the River Market to The Country Club Plaza, is the boutique firm the Boveri Realty Group located above Mildreds Coffeehouse in the Crossroads district. Founded by Christina Boveri, Boveri Realty is fast becoming the urban space resource center for a wide variety of people looking for a residence in the urban core.

"There are all kinds of people looking to move into the Urban Core," explained Boveri. "There are first time homebuyers, young professionals, single women, baby boomers, individuals with alternative lifestyles...It's an eclectic group, and it's so refreshing to see them all come together."

Unlike most real estate agents that represent specific projects, the agents at Boveri Realty are well versed on all of the current and upcoming projects happening throughout the area. More importantly, they possess a good understanding of the issues relating to the Urban Core and civic life in the city.

Boveri said, "Too many real estate agents have a limited working knowledge about the details of current developments, or a passion for the revitalization of Kansas City. It's not just about the real estate. It's about creating a city where we can live, work and play."

Where Boveri Realty excels in its efforts can be attributed to the relationships its agents have cultivated with various neighborhood and business associations, the Kansas City Chamber, the
