

New Real Estate Company Understands The Issues Of The Urban Core

Christina Boveri

Everyone can use an ally, and for those ready to give up the suburbs for the excitement of downtown living, they now have one to help make the transition an easy one.

Christina Boveri, whose new real estate company specializes in lofts, condos and townhomes in the downtown area, is helping clients focus on opportunities from the River Market area to The Plaza.

Boveri Realty will celebrate their grand opening Thursday, April 21st, at 5:30 pm, at their office space in the heart of the Crossroads District, 1819 Wyandotte, Suite 200. There will be a raffle for many great "prizes" from several downtown merchants. The monies will go to the Downtown Council to aid in promoting the revitalization of downtown Kansas City.

Boveri sees her new company as somewhat of boutique-styled business-offering specialized services to a niche market. Boveri knows how important it is for her and her agents to have a good understanding of issues relating to the Urban Core and civic life downtown. Boveri has hand-picked her staff to better serve the special concerns of her customers.

"Too many real estate agents sell to the suburbs and areas outside of downtown," explains Boveri. "They have limited working knowledge about the details of current downtown developments or a passion for the revitalization of the area."

Boveri Realty Group will be loft and condo seekers one-stop-shop for information on downtown residential projects. Their "loft library" will serve as an urban info center, featuring all the current and upcoming projects happening downtown.

Boveri served as the marketing agent on such projects as Gillham Row and Brookside's Crestwood before forming her own company. Her extensive knowledge and enthusiasm come from her commitment in these very successful projects, as well as her involvement in the Urban Core Group and the Downtown Council.

"Creating a city where we can live, work and play is more important than the real estate itself," says Boveri. "Boveri Realty Group will strive to be much more than your average broker. We intend to work hard to ensure that people will enjoy living downtown."
